Auburn, New York

Dear Interested Vendor:

In order to promote Auburn and Cayuga County, City manager Mark Palesh has formed a working group to honor historically significant people who have had ties to this area. The person to be so honored will be Theodore William Case in conjunction with the invention of Talking Films.

Currently, in combination with this celebration, there are plans to have a “Taste of Auburn” festival in downtown Auburn on Genesee Street. The plan is to block off the street from Dill Street to North/South Street on Saturday June 12th, 2010. We will have other events taking place in the parking garage area as well.

We would like to cordially invite you to participate in this event, by setting up a booth to display and sell samples of your menu items and/or store products to all those who attend this event.

Vendors who participated last year were very pleased with the overall success of this event and had very positive feedback with the organization of the “Taste of Auburn” festival. This has become an annual event, and those vendors who participate this coming June will be given first choice in subsequent festivals, which will be held in early June each year.

The registration fee is $35.00 for craft vendors and $75.00 for food vendors.

Please e-mail Paul Lattimore, Jr. if you are interested in setting up a booth for this event at pwljr@mac.com or call Andrew Fish at 315-252-7291.

Sincerely,
