

Corporation Counsel Department

April 16, 2015

What We Do

The Corporation Counsel's office is the City's attorney and provides all legal services for the City, advises the Mayor and Council, Department Heads and all employees as required. The matters which the Counsel's office provides these services are diverse in nature and can encompass many legal matters that the City encounters on a daily basis. The services relate to labor contract negotiations, examination of public works contracts and bidding procedure, property sales and acquisitions in addition to dog control and housing violations to mention a few. The office also engages other outside law firms to deal with specialized matters as required.

Who We Serve

Corporation Counsel's Office serves not only the Mayor and Councilors, City Manager, Department Heads, City Employees but also all of the Citizens of Auburn.

What Revenues We Generate

There are minimal Revenues which are generated from the Corporation Counsel's Office. There are fines and/or penalties originating from City Court Cases regarding code violations and dog control cases.

Also, revenues are generated by means of tax foreclosure proceedings whereby properties acquired as a result of delinquent taxes and are sold at auction with revenues being provided back to the city to offset the delinquent revenues.
